Welcome to #ubuntu-uk! http://ubuntu-uk.org | This channel is publicly archived http:
10:09 < popey> ewwww
10:09 < popey> 1280x1024
10:10 < czajkowski> anyone mind if I take a screen capture of this channel for the last 15 mins?
10:11 < wintellect> popey: 1280x1024 rocks!!!
10:12 < popey> wintellect: its a horrid resolution
10:13 < Lcawte> 1280x1024 is the correct screen resolution for my current monitor, but the nvidia-96 driver is broken, and the open source driver(s)
      don't work :/
10:14 < oimon> popey: you resolution snob :)
10:14 < popey> http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/File:Vector_Video_Standards5.svg
10:14 < popey> look at the red ones
10:14 < popey> duff aspect ratio
10:15 < popey> 5:4
10:15 < oimon> it's the natural resolution of most 17 inch monitors
10:15 < popey> \o/ CGA!
10:15 < popey> I have owned a few 17" monitors and never have owned one at that resolution
10:16 < wintellect> I have a 17" and that's its res
10:16 < wintellect> NTM - why would I want less pixels when doing work?
10:17 < popey> I didnt say less pixels
10:17 < popey> I want square pixels

@fabsh: I know, I know. :) I love your podcast BTW. Much better than UbuntuUK IMHO.

Listening to UbuntuUK podcast from Switzerland, always a great show! Bought an Arduino on the strength of their review - I must be a geek!

Ubuntu One App Developer evening, Manchester

Ubuntu One is the personal cloud that brings your digital life together, so you can enjoy your content, your way, wherever you are. With our suite of cloud services including storage, sync, sharing and streaming - you have immediate access to your music collection, favorite photos, videos, important documents and more, at any time and from any device.

At Ubuntu One, we're firm believers in simplicity, so what we aim to provide developers with is clear consistent APIs for you to build your own applications. They've been designed with care and attention so that they're built to be used by apps. We're really looking forward to seeing what imagination is out there. Whether you're storing data from web apps or Windows or Ubuntu, storing, sharing or publishing files from Android or the cloud, or streaming music to mobiles or desktops, or maybe even having people sign in to your web apps with their Ubuntu One identity, this is the place you need to be.

The Ubuntu One App Developer Program is fronted by our futures architect Stuart Langridge and to kick things off on Thursday 1st of September we're inviting developers to an evening of talking Ubuntu One apps at Manchester Metropolitan University from 7pm. It's also a chance to do some networking with like-minded folks so come say hello! We're really looking forward to hearing what imaginative Ubuntu One app ideas are out there and helping you make them. To find out more about the Ubuntu One APIs before the event, go to <https://one.ubuntu.com/developer>.
